Issue 22

Friday 4th March 2022

The children (or their adults to be precise!) threw themselves into World Book Day yesterday with a fine array of costumes. Your efforts are appreciated, particularly those families who designed and made their own costumes which again highlighted the many skills hiding in plain sight within the Sandgate Primary community.

There is another dress up day on Friday 18th March for Red Nose Day. Although this is a less spectacular day, I do appreciate the additional burden in terms of time for preparation — and in the case of Red Nose Day, the cost of donations — that non-uniform days can have so I apologise for the fact that I have scheduled another one for next Friday, the 11th.

With events in Ukraine, many of you have made contact with the school about how we might support the developing humanitarian crisis. The Red Cross are raising funds to provide food, medical supplies, water shelter and clothing for the people of Ukraine, therefore on Friday 11th March, the school will have a non-uniform day and ask for a voluntary contribution which we will send to the Red Cross appeal. In addition, we will be having a cake sale after school that day; cake donations can be brought into school Friday morning. (No nuts please!) It would be helpful if there are any of you available to volunteer to set up and run the sale. If you are able, please would you get in touch.

Finally, some sporting congratulations to our basketball team for winning all their games thus coming 1st in the Folkestone School Games Basketball competition, and also to our football team who on their first Herald Cup group stage match 7—2 this week.

Best Wishes
Matthew Green

Governors' Corner

Governors had a great training course this week with Mrs Shoob and Mr Sharp looking at curriculum and monitoring, and we are now back in school on visits, meeting with staff and children. We are looking forward to seeing the amazing work they are doing.
