

Sandgate Primary School

Everyone deserves the taste of success

Issue 5

Friday 7th October 2022

Things are never quiet at Sandgate Primary; however, the next few weeks are the busiest of the term with a lot of events taking place and dates to remember! This will be useful preparation for term two which sees the return of year group Christmas performances and the Christmas Fayre. You will also be receiving information about the clubs on offer for term 2 - as before, we ask that you complete the Google Form so that we can allocate children to clubs ready for the new term.

But back to this term! Next week is Book Week which the children love. As well as school-based experiences, such as the poetry hunt which the children have already started, will be holding a book fair after school with a wide range of texts that you are able to buy. The school has recently invested in two card readers which will make paying much more straight forward. Perhaps the most anticipated element of book week is our PJ night: this one will be even more special as it is the first one for three years. Children are able to return to school in the evening to hear stories read to them by staff while parents relax in the hall with a beverage - you are welcome to wear your PJs too of course.

October is Black History Month; therefore, you will have received information about how our children will be celebrating black history, culture and heritage at school as well as how you can get involved. There is also the opportunity to be the designer of a special edition values sticker to go in our albums; it would be fantastic to have an entry from every family or child.

Next week, work will finally begin on Mrs Uttley's memorial. It has taken far longer than we had imagined to commission this project but we will shortly have a terraced garden area in which children can plant and care for flowers, paint pebbles and leave other tokens in memory of Suzie. Once it is complete we will be looking for families who may wish to spend time together in the memorial garden to talk, reflect, share memories and take care of the garden in the same way Suzie loved and cared for the children.
